

Tom Lehman

CSS Hunley

The history of the U.S. produced many important dates. February 17, 1864, would be added to that list. It was the first time in American history that an enemy ship, the Housatonic, was torpedoed by the CSS Hunley, sinking in approximately five minutes.

Come & hear the events that led up to that tragic day and the recovery of the missing CSS Hunley in 1999.

About our Speaker:

Tom has been an avid CW fan for over 45 years. He has enjoyed being a part of living history, re-enacting, and presenting school programs. He has been the program chairman for Hershey for over seven years.